Commentary

In January 2025, the CAL Benefit Unit Trust delivered a return of -1.72%, predominantly impacted by price volatility in some key Treasury Bill holdings resulting from the upward movement in yields on the secondary market. Looking ahead, the strategy will centre on securing higher yields by investing in Treasury Bills and high-quality Corporate Debt, anticipating a gradual decline in yields in 2025. The portfolio will also maintain strong liquidity through short-term bank securities, while seeking offshore sovereign and duration exposure to mitigate currency risk. Our objective is to further diversify the portfolio and optimize returns, positioning the Trust for sustained long-term competitive performance.
